Viterra adds young agronomist to its team

Viterra has welcomed Jake Rademacher to its South Australian team as agronomist for the central South Australian region. Based at Minlaton, Jake will focus on the lower Yorke Peninsula and sections of the upper Yorke Peninsula.

Despite his relatively young age, Jake has developed significant experience in the agricultural industry through his previous positions.

Since completing a Bachelor of Agriculture at the University of Adelaide, Jake has worked as both a research agronomist and as a sales agronomist on Yorke Peninsula.

Working alongside fellow Viterra agronomists in the central region, Dr Grant Roberts and Peter Baker, Jake's responsibilities as agronomist will include working one-on-one with growers to tailor individual agronomic solutions that suit their requirements.

Jake will also work closely with Customer Relationship Managers Mark Price and Brian Barnett, to meet the needs of grower customers around grain accumulation, fertiliser, crop protection products and seed.

Bill Francis, Central Regional Sales Manager, is enthusiastic about Jake's appointment, saying that it would further strengthen the team and commitment to growers on the Yorke Peninsula.

"Having a dedicated agronomist on the Yorke Peninsula is a big plus," Mr Francis said.

"Being a key malting barley growing region requires someone who understands the unique characteristics of the region.

"Jake's experience and local knowledge will undoubtedly prove useful as he works with local growers."
